

VACANCY

MACHINE OPERATIVES

Forum Packaging Ltd, Horncastle is renowned throughout the paper sack industry for its award winning print capabilities and respected as one of the leading packaging companies in the UK supplying all types of paper sack to a wide variety of market sectors.

Due to its continued growth, Forum is recruiting for machine operatives to work in the Conversion Department on various shift patterns – rotating two/three shifts or permanent nights.

All applicants will be expected to be self-motivated with the ability to use their own initiative; be effective team players and be responsible for achieving optimum output whilst maintaining high quality standards. They must have a positive and flexible approach, be quality conscious and have a good understanding of health, safety and hygiene standards.

Successful applicants will be required to train to machine operator level. Multi-skilling is essential within the department and operators are expected to be able to cover a variety of roles including take-off and assistant. Full training will be given, however, applicants must have experience of working in a manufacturing environment and basic mechanical knowledge.

If you have the basic skills required, are educated to GCSE standard (to include Maths and English), are computer literate and would like to join a friendly well established company that can provide a competitive salary and benefits package, then please apply in writing enclosing your CV to Jo Topley, HR Manager.

Please provide an email address and mobile telephone number on your application. If successful, an invitation to attend an interview will be sent via email or text message.
